

Dear Sir or Madam,

Given that Sinclair uses the public airwaves, and hence the public trust, I think that it should be held to a standard of impartiality and fairness in political programming. The upcoming documentary on a POW story seems to fly in the face of impartiality with the intent of influencing the upcoming election. This is not a public service - but the equivalent of a political ad. Sinclair has the opportunity to take the publicity it is receiving over this issue to turn it into something good - by allowing the Kerry campaign time to respond to the issues raised in the program. Please hold Sinclair to this higher standard of impartiality.

Thank you,

Daniel Zak
